LexisNexis Small Business Attributes

LexisNexis® Small Business Attributes analyze data from public records about businesses and business owners.

LexisNexis Small Business Attributes are designed to help assess a business's creditworthiness and indicate possible risks that are associated with the business. These attributes describe characteristics of the input business and the potential relationship between the business and the input authorized representatives.

Zero Values

The response may return a value of zero (0) for an attribute.

A value of zero can be returned for any of the following conditions:

The attribute returns a count or value of zero

There are no source records on file for the business or business representative, or the data source returns a value or count of zero for the business or business representative.

The attribute is a boolean attribute

The attribute value is reported as false.

The attribute is a categorical response

For example, the input phone number is valid or the input information is not valid.

Negative Values

The response may return a negative value, which returns in the form of a negative number (for example, -1, -99999, -99998, and -99997) for the attribute.

A negative value can be returned for any of the following conditions:

There is no information available on file

Sufficient identity information is not on file for the business.

Input information is missing

Sufficient input information was not provided for the business or the business's authorized representative.

Unable to calculate

The attribute value cannot be calculated.

Element does not exist on file

For example, there are no UCC (uniform commercial code) filings or trade accounts on file.

Value is unknown

For example, the lien type cannot be determined or the lien type is unknown.

SSN Randomization

The SSA (Social Security Administration) changed their method for assigning an SSN (Social Security number) to a randomized approach effective June 25, 2011.

Previously, SSN values were methodically assigned according to a specific format based on published ranges indicative of the state in which the SSN was issued and the issuance date, commonly referred to as the block group. The SSA developed the randomized method to help protect the integrity of the SSN and extend the longevity of the nine-digit SSN nationwide.

With the randomized assignment approach, an SSN is not issued according to published ranges but are issued in a randomized approach. Consequently, LexisNexis® Risk Solutions is limited in its ability to conduct certain risk evaluations and return issuance information on a SSN issued after the change. However, LexisNexis Risk Solutions does report the historical issuance information and risk assessments for a SSN that match a published, valid SSN block group that was used prior to the change.

Due to the nature of the origin of public record information, the public records and commercially available data sources used in reports may contain errors.

LexID Number

A LexID® number is a fast-linking technology that helps you make intelligent information connections by drawing insights from both traditional and new sources of data.

The LexID technology is the ingredient behind LexisNexis Risk Solutions products that turns disparate information into meaningful insights. This technology helps LexisNexis Risk Solutions identify, link, and organize information. LexisNexis Risk Solutions uses this technology to process a large amount of data that can help you process decisions quickly and confidently.

Business Associate Types

Specific terms used throughout this publication.

The following terms are used:

Associate

An associate is a person who appears on file as being associated with a business.

Authorized Representative

Person Link

Person link describes the relationship between a consumer and a business.
